I am amazed that Microsoft Corporation is being allowed to flagrantly violate the antitrust laws because the judge deciding the case has been somewhat indiscreet. In the long run, I think that Microsoft is more of a danger to our society than some hairy bastard living in a cave in Afghanistan. I am pretty sure that our military is capable of killing Bin Laden, but it's starting to look like the DOJ is unwilling to do anything about Bill Gates. 100 million Americans have been harmed by Microsoft's arrogant lawlessness. I think the break-up of the company was the most effective solution possible. Not only would it give competitors a fairer chance, but I think that we would also get better software out of the baby Microsofts. If the Bush DOJ continues on its present path, I can guarantee that I will never vote for George W. Bush again.
